

Oversight Systems Announces New Corporate Headquarters

ATLANTA – August 19, 2009 – Oversight Systems, the leader in continuous controls monitoring, announced today that it will be relocating its headquarters to 1090 Northchase Parkway, Suite 350, Atlanta, Georgia. The move will take place this month. The new location will allow Oversight to accommodate growing market demand.

“We feel very fortunate to have experienced tremendous growth in the past year. In our fiscal year, ending July 31, 2009, we doubled our revenues and number of employees,” said Patrick Taylor, chief executive officer of Oversight Systems.

According to Taylor, market demand is driving Oversight’s continued growth: “Customers who started monitoring one business process are increasingly coming back to add three or four more processes. To meet their requirements and the growing need to certify partners on the Oversight platform, we plan to expand our professional services team. We’re also expanding our engineering staff as we broaden our product footprint to include additional vertically oriented solutions, such as energy trading. We simply needed more space to grow these teams and ultimately meet our customers’ needs.”

###

About Oversight Systems

Oversight Systems identifies fraud, misuse and error in business transactions and master data files for some of the world’s largest companies and institutions. Its continuous controls monitoring software harnesses powerful analytics that excel at finding problems, offers an investigator’s workbench for fixing problems, and establishes a workflow enabled audit trail for proving problem resolution and compliance.

Contact for Oversight Systems:

David Gerulski

info@oversightsystems.com

770.984.4650